DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- (e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.
- 2. Claims 1-3, 6-14 and 18-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Brookey (US 2001/0027880 A1).

Brookey teaches a fluid for use in well drilling and servicing which comprises a surfactant within the scope of the present invention (see example 5 and paragraph 34), aphrons and a viscosifier which is also a stabilizer (paragraph 0036). The pH of the fluid is within the scope of claim 13 (paragraph 0023). Such viscosifier/stabilizer may be present within the scope fo the present invention (paragraph 0020). The fluid may contain additional viscosifiers (paragraph 0021). Such fluid being the same in scope with the present invention, would inherently have half-life properties and pressure stability properties within the scope of the present invention.

3. Claims 1-3 and 6-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Brookey (6770601).

Brookey teaches an aphron containing drilling or servicing fluid which comprises a surfactant, which can be a betaine or alkyl ether sulfate (column 7, lines 14-28), and viscosifiers which also act as stabilizers (column 5, lines 1-12). Several such viscosifiers/stabilizers are listed from column 5, line 33 to column 7, line 13. Furthermore, combinations such as clay and viscosifier (column 7, lines 10-13), or combinations of polymers which would act as viscosifier and stabilizer are also disclosed (see Examples). Low shear rate viscosities of over 100,000 centipoise are achieved (Table A). Such fluid being the same in scope with the present invention, would inherently have half-life properties and pressure stability properties within the scope of the present invention.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 5. Claims 1 and 15-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Brookey (2001/0027880).

aphrons and a viscosifier which is also a stabilizer (paragraph 0036). Brookey teaches that the fluid has a Low shear rate viscosity of at least 10,000 centipoise. To the extent that the compositions of Brookey have a low shear rate viscosity from 20,000 to 100,000 centipoise, then claims 15-17 are anticipated. If such is not anticipated, then it would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to make adjust the low shear rate viscosity of the fluids in order to improve their ability for use in well drilling operations.

- 6. Claims 4 and 5 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
- 7. Claims 33-40 are allowable over the art of record.
